FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Financial statements should include an organization's income statement (statement of activities), a balance sheet (statement of net position) and a cash-flow statement. Income Statement, also known as the Profit and Loss Statement, includes your financial performance in terms of net profit or loss over a specified period. The income statement is composed of the following two elements: income and expenses. The balance sheet presents the financial position of your organization at a given date. The balance sheet is composed of the following three elements: assets, liabilities, and equity. The cash flow statement presents the movement of cash and bank balances over a fixed period. The cash flow statement is composed of the following three elements: operating activities, investing activities, and financing activities.

REVIEWED FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Reviewed financial statements require a CPA to perform inquiry and analytical procedures that extend beyond the scope of a compilation review¹. Upon completion, a report is issued with "limited assurance" stating that a review has been performed in accordance with the American Institute of CPA's (AICPA) professional standards, that a review is less in scope than an audit, and that the CPA did not become aware of any material modifications that should be made in order for the statements to be in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles, or if applicable, another comprehensive basis of accounting. Please note that Schedulesⁱ A, B and C are required to be included in your reviewed financial statement as supplementary information and your audit firm is required to include these schedules.

AUDITED FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Audited Financial Statements are required for all entities that expend $300,000 or more regardless of source. Audited Financial Statements require a CPA to perform inquiry and analytical procedures that extend beyond the scope of compiled or reviewed statements, including verification and substantiation procedures. These verification and substantiation procedures may include direct correspondence with creditors or debtors to verify details of amounts owed, physical inspection of inventories or investment securities, inspection of minutes and contracts, and other similar steps. Also, the CPA gains a knowledge and understanding of the entity's system of internal control. Upon completion, a report is issued with "positive assurance" stating that a review has been performed in accordance with both the American Institute of CPA's (AICPA) professional standards and generally accepted auditing standards, and expresses an opinion that the financial statements present fairly the entity's financial position and results of operations. Please note that Schedulesⁱ A, B, and C are required to be included in your audited financial statement as supplementary information.

¹ Compilation review entails the most basic level of service CPAs provide with respect to financial statements. In a compilation, the CPA must comply with certain basic requirements of professional standards, such as having a knowledge of the client's industry and applicable accounting principles, having a clear understanding with the client as to the services to be provided, and reading the financial statements to determine whether there are any obvious departures from generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP, or, in some cases, another comprehensive basis of accounting used by the entity).

2 CFR 200 Subpart F AUDIT (Single Audit)

All non-Federal entities that expend $750,000 or more of Federal awards in the entity's fiscal year must have a single audit conducted in accordance with §200.514 Scope of audit.

A single audit requires a CPA to conduct an entity-wide audit consisting of two main parts: an audit of the basic financial statements and an audit of the entity's major Federal award programs. The audit of financial statements must determine whether the financial statements of the auditee are presented fairly in all material respects in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. The auditor must also determine whether the schedule of expenditures of Federal awards is stated fairly in all material respects in relation to the auditee's financial statements as a whole. The audit of the major programs includes (a) gaining an understanding of and testing the internal controls and performing tests of internal controls over the federal programs and (b) a compliance audit governing laws and regulations and the provisions of contracts and grants of the Federal award programs.

Upon completion, a report is issued with the CPA's opinion on whether an organization has complied with laws, regulations and the provisions of contracts or grants that have a direct and material effect on each of its major programs. Please note that Schedules A, B, and C are required to be included in you're Single Audit as supplementary information and your audit firm must include these schedules in their audit opinion.
